

Introducing a new EPI Advanced Learning Workshop:

Protecting Disabled and Elderly Principals and Family Members

This workshop gives Protection Professionals a greater understanding of working with elderly and disabled individuals.

Thanks to modern medicine and advanced medical techniques, it is not unusual for corporate executives, high net worth family members, and other notable individuals to continue to work and travel at an advanced age. It's also not unusual that some Principals and/or their family members may have some type of disability. As an option, we will visit an event facility and perform a security walk-through with regards to advancing a location for a principal with a mobility disability.

This workshop will focus on peer-to-peer interaction. EPI wants to engage participants, rather than lecture to them.

What this workshop will cover:

- ADA requirements for buildings
- Fire and life safety emergencies
- Medical response and concerns
- Getting in and off of aircraft
- Types of hazards and concerns
- Transferring in and out of vehicles
- Podiums and stages
- Types of Disabilities and special requirements
- Conducting advances for disabled and elderly
- Understanding patience, respect, dignity, and courtesies
